STEPHENS-PORT.

EDITOR NEWS: As I rarely see mention of our town in your valuable paper, I thought I would let you know that we number one among the important points in the county, in fact, taking population into consideration, we are ahead of any other town in the county in point of business, of all kinds.

We have some good merchants that are doing a fair business, and if they could be impressed with the idea of carrying larger and better assorted stocks, it would gain for them in the future a large trade that legitimately belongs here, but now goes elsewhere.

The Diadem Mill is doing a large business this season, taking four days of the week to grind for custom and then running at night part of the time. Both the tobacco and corn crops are short in this vicinity, corn is retailing by the wagon load at 45 and 50 cents per bushel and scarce at that.

The impression is that tobacco will be lower than it was last season.

Hogs are not extra good on account of the scarcity of corn, and pork is so low that farmers have no encouragement to feed their hogs. Mr. Joseph A. Atkins shipped a lot of forty head this week to Louisville and got $2.40 per hundred.

Mr. James Bricker, an old and esteemed citizen living three miles from town, was very seriously injured last Friday by his wagon, loaded with wood, turning over on him. Dr. Cox was hastily called to attend him.

We are glad to see that the News has laid aside her patent and come out in original home colors, and it is the duty of the people to sustain their county paper by subscribing for it. The News should be read by every family in the county, and we feel that the energy and talent that are connecting it will establish it upon a firm basis and make it interesting to all.

Four young gentlemen, of Cloverport, on last Sunday concluded they would take a game of cards. All through the country men are prowling around, pretending to be agent for some agricultural establishment. They stay all night with some well-to-do farmers and next morning pay their bill, presenting a ten, twenty or fifty dollar counterfeit bill and get good money from the farmer.

The Meade Record says that a chicken, hen, laid an egg in the nest of a partridge, and that the partridge set on the nest and hatched the hen's egg with her own eggs. The Record thinks this circumstance makes the rooster the mother of the chicken.
